In March 2017 full council approved the Gedling Plan for 2017/19 which included a new action to “explore implementation of a new pet cremation service, if financially viable.”

“Dog & Cat Lovers”

Apparently in the East Midlands we’re cat and dog lovers, with the highest instances of dog and cat ownership in the country.

Creating a financially sustainable service

Early discussions with local vets indicated that there would be support for such a service as it was perceived that there are currently only the larger national providers and one or two small independent family run businesses operating in this area. No mid-range organisations supplying into this potential market. So Gedling Pet Cremation Services was established to fill this gap.

The Service operates both inside and outside of the Borough boundary and involves the collection of pet cadavers from veterinary surgeries and from residents households. The deceased pets are then transported to Jubilee Depot to be cremated individually, and the ashes are returned back to the veterinary surgery for collection, or to the household direct if requested by the pet owner.
Objectives

This project segues into our Gedling Plan values as:

‘a commercial council approach that is innovative in its use of resources and focussed on giving tax payers value for money’, and in our priorities of being:

‘a high performing Council – providing an ‘efficient and effective service’.

In this golden tread context there is an ambition to provide a local financially sustainable pet cremation service that provides good value for money in terms of generating income for the Council, and a service that local residents will benefit from delivered by their Local Authority as a reputable and trustworthy organisation.

A new pet cremation service is being launched next month by Gedling Borough Council. Currently, pet cremations are arranged by local veterinary practices and carried out by private firms. Operating under the name Gedling Pet Cremation Services, the Pet Cremation Team at Gedling Borough Council will provide bespoke arrangements to collect customers’ pets from their home or vet, provide an individual cremation and return the pet’s ashes the following day.

A reflection room will also be available for customers to say their last goodbye in private.

The service will be available from the April 1, providing bespoke cremations for dogs, cats and other small animals, with prices starting from £40.

What goes into saying goodbye to your beloved pets? Behind the scenes at the Gedling Pet Crematorium

We took a behind the scenes look at the pet crematorium to see what goes into the final steps of an owner saying goodbye to their pet.

During one of the most heartbreaking times in an owner’s life when a loved pet dies, it can be difficult to know where to turn or what comes next during a cremation.

Nottinghamshire Live took a behind the scenes look at the Gedling Borough Council’s Pet Cremation Service to see what goes into the final steps of an owner saying goodbye to their pet.

The council-run crematorium, which opened in April, offers a range of packages to owners and animals that can be cremated at the facility.

While the majority are cats and dogs, sheep, deer, geckos, chickens, rabbits and hamsters are also given their final send-off there.

Pets can be collected from vet surgeries or from home where they are transported to the Jubilee House in Arnold.

Staff members, Dave Pendleton, 44, and Jade Cole, 20, work closely together to deliver the service to pet owners across Nottinghamshire.

As a second phase to this ongoing project we aim to contract directly with the vets for removal of clinical and hazardous waste, including the pet cadavers.

And at some time in the future we hope to identify some land and establish a pet cemetery.
